STONEHENGE II

A project by AL SHEPPERD Designed and Constructed by DOUG HILL

Al Shepperd and Doug Hill

Al's Wake August, 1994

In 1989 Doug Hill tipped on end a massive limestone rock onto Al Shepperd's field. After looking at the rock and joking about it for months, Al and Doug decided to build an arch behind the rock to make it more visible to passers by. When the arch was built, Al was reminded of the original Stonehenge in England. He commissioned Doug to design and build a stonehenge. Stonehenge II is not a replica; it is about 2/3 the size of the original, and it is not oriented to the sun, as is the original. It is, however, Doug Hill's impression, in steel and concrete, of the nearly 5,000 year old circle of stones on the Salisbury Plain.

Construction took nine months. Doug and his assistants, Jose Navarro, Jesus Contreras and others, built the pillars by sinking steel rebar into concrete footings, wrapping the rebar with metal lathe and then applying cement.

The Easter Island statuary, for Al, was a natural partner for Stonehenge II. He had visited Easter Island and now thought the mystery of the construction of those magnificent statues was a complement to the mystery of Stonehenge.

A ride to Ingram and Stonehenge II

We stopped for lunch early for Dave

You Can't ride through Medina with out stopping here

Hello to chapter O couple of the year

Thanks for coming to the O rally

You can't please all the people all the time

Texas Chapter O 27th Annual Bluebonnet Rally 2014

Chapter O supplied all the cookies you could eat

There were a lot of bargains to be had at the silent auction tables, over 200 items (mostly new things)

Friends from every where come to visit

Who is that behind Linda

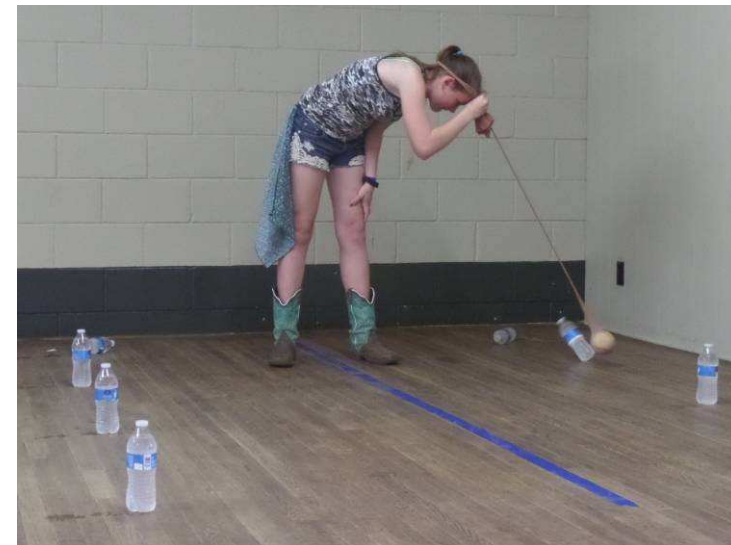

Let the Minute to Win it Games begin

Texas Chapter O 27th Annual Bluebonnet Rally 2014

Minute to Win it games were a big hit this year.

I don't think you are suppose to put your finger in the shaving cream to make it stand up

This is a whole new way to wear pantyhose.
